Technical Publications that Inform, Instruct & Inspire

October 2008

Libby Craver, owner of Written Designs, was recently selected a judge for the Middle Tennessee Society for Technical Communication (STC) Chapter 2008-2009 Technical Communication Competition. This competition is designed to recognize outstanding technical, scientific, medical or similar content for both Online Communications and Technical Publications.

"I'm really looking forward to looking at some of the leading technical publications that are produced by local firms," Libby shared. "Being a relative newcomer to the Middle Tennessee area, I thought this was a great way to get involved in my local STC chapter as well as familiarize myself with the types of publications being produced in this area."

Local STC Competitions generally occur on a yearly basis and are open to STC and non-STC members alike. Three levels of recognition can be awarded. The chapter also awards one entry with the Best of Show award. The Best of Show entry as well as all entries receiving Distinguished awards are automatically entered into STC's International Competitions.
